The Shot Fired While He Stood in Front of a Mirror.

HEAVY FINANCIAL LOSSES THOUGHT TO MAVE UNBALANCED HIS MIND.

He Made Preparation for Death by Having a New Will Drawn Up Last Wednesday Night-His Losses in Consequence of the Glesson Real Estate Co.'s Financial Embarrassment -Eketch of the Deceased.

Maj. John C. Lullman, real estate broker. financial agent and capitalist, committed suicide this morning at 9:30 a. m. by shootthrough the head ber revolver at his with a 38-caliber revolver at his nome, 1101 North Cardinal avenue. For the past two weeks Maj. Lullman has been restless and unsettled and although he has never hinted at suicide, his friends were traid that something of the kind would occur. Two months ago Luliman made will, Mr. Emil A. Becker drawing it up. Last sday night Mr. Lullman called on Mr. Becker and had him draw a new will. fused to wait until the following morning, and insisted that Mr. Becker make cerchanges in the old will then and there. Mr. Becker did as requested, drawing a new will the following day, which Mr. Lullman Friday. Last night he talked about financial les to his family, but did not ten his life. This morning he arose about 8 o'clock and ordered breakfast, stating he would eat about 9 o'clock. He then took a bath and dressed himself carefully in black as though going to a reception of some kind, and when called to breakfast a few minutes after 9 said he would be down in a few minutes.

TOOK DELIBERATE AIM. Miss Loretta, the eldest daughter, who had assisted in the preparation of breakfast for father, then went up stairs see what detained him. She looked into his room and failing to see him called "Papa." As she did a shot was heard in the bath-room, which is on the same floor, but a room removed from his bedroom. The daughter instantly divined the cause of the shot, uttered a shriek and ran down stairs in time to tell the family.

daughter instantly divined the cause of the shot, uttered a shriek and ran down stairs in time to tell the family.

Death was immediate. The shrieks of the family caused the neighbors to pour in, and Maj. O. F. Guthrie, an old friend of Luliman's went for Dr. Hawley on Easton avenue, near Cardinal. When the doctor arrived he pronounced Mr. Luliman dead, stating that death was instantaneous.

The preparations for the suicide had been complete. Luliman, after dressing himself, had gone into the bathroom and arranged himself directly in front of a mirror hanging over the tub, and placing the revolver to his temple to be sure pulled the trigger. As he fell the revolver to his temple to be sure pulled the trigger. As he fell the revolver to sink into a heap he never moved after the shot, When frierids arrived he was found doubled up on the floor as though he had fallen to his knees and then dropped forward, his head leaning against the bath tub. The body was straightened out so that it would not stiffen and allowed to remain until it was taken charge of by the undertaker. Immediately after the arrival of the neighbors word was telephoned to Charles H. Gleason, Emil A. Becker and August Gehner, who arrived and assumed control of affairs.

MADE A NEW WILL.

MADE A NEW WILL.

Mr. Hecker, who was the first to arrive, stated that while he knew that Luliman had had financial losses he had never dreamt of him committing suicide. "I might have known something was going to happen," said Mr. Hecker, when I drew his will. I drew one two months ago for him and last Wednesday night he insisted on a new one. He came to my house at night and insisted that I do it at once. He refused to wait and I took the old will and altered it to suit and drew a new one from it the next FINANCIAL LOSS THE CAUSE. The cause of the suicide, according to the friends of the dead man in real estate circles, was financial troubles and the loss of about was innancial troubes and the loss of about $40,000. When the firm of Gleason & Co. became involved, Maj. Luliman told an intimate friend that he lost $35,000 through the firm. This seemed to worry him considerably, and a few days ago he applied to August Gehner to ask his advice about a $2,500 note which was due and on which he was the indorser. Mr. Gehner advised him to pay it, as it was only a small amount. This Maj. Luliman said he did not care to do, although at the time he had pienty of cash, and the payment of the note would not have embarrassed him in the least. For the past three Sunday mornings Luliman was noticed sitting on the steps of the Haynes Realty company's office as early as 80'clock. Mr. Emil A. Becker, who was formerly a member of Gleason & Co., and who drew Maj. Luliman's will, has an office in the building, and it was supposed that it was Mr. Becker, for whom he was waiting. His troubles have caused him to drink a little of late. The suicide is not attributed to this, however, but to insanity caused by the loss of money. It was not thought for some time that Luliman had lost much on Gleason until he stated that he was out $35,000 on his paper. The fact was brought out in court that he held a chattel mortgage on the househola and office effects of hir. Gleason for $1,700.

court that he held a chattel mortgage on the household and office effects of hir. Gleason for $1,780.

Exactly how much money Maj. Luliman was worth, his most intimute friends claim met to know, and the amount is estimated at all the way from $200,000 to $500,000 some people claiming to have heard him state that he could raise the latter amount if he should ever be forced to do so. Maj. Luliman held in trust and was agent for a number of large estates, principal among which are the M. Mulier estate, the Groves estate, the Kennett place estate and the Alford estate. He is the owner of thirty shares of the German American Bank stock, of which he is a director. At the Bank the officers refused to believe that money could have had anything to do with the suicide, and attributed it to ill health, stating that for the past two weeks Maj. Luliman had been sick and had partialy agreed to go to Lebanon Springs with a party in the first part of October.

The dead man wa a member of kansom Post, G. A. E., and of the Legion of Honor "Big Six" Council, a trustee in the order and a director in the German-American Savings Bank. He leaves a wife and three children, Loretta, a young lady o' about 22 years by his first wife and Henrietta, a girl of 14 years, and John G., a boy of 12 years, children of the present Mrs. Luliman. The title of his jor was gained by Mr. Luliman through service in the Home cuards, he holding that rank in the organization under the first call for volunteers by President Lincoln in 1861. He was 59 years old and corn in Germany.

GOLD OVER THE COUNTERS.

The Order Issued From the Treasury Department to Sub-Treasuries.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 21 .- Orders have all Sub-Treasuries to pay out gold over the counters the same as other classes of money. The effect of this is to practically place the gold reserve among the available treasury cash assets. As a result the gold balance has been somewhat reduced, being slightly below $100,000,000. The net Treasury balance is $11,750,000. Receipts continue light and expenditures heavy, so that before the month of August expires the Treasury balance and the gold balance will both be probably lower than now.

FINANCIAL DEPRESSION AND SINGLE TAX. New York, Aug. 21 .- To the question, "Ir how far would single tax help to prevent a financial depression like that now agitating the financial world?" Henry George last night financial depression like that now agitating the financial world?" Henry George last night replied:

"Single tax would prevent it entirely by preventing the conditions which engender depression. The only sufficient explanation of periodical depression is that by a natural law all advance and improvement add to the value of land, or, in other words, increase economic rent. Therefore, under conditions in which we allow the owners of land to take this result of general growth for themselves the advance is discounted by speculation.
"Land is held from use, and held at a higher price than it will yield at present in the expectation of a future increase. The advance in land values finally reaches a point at which labor and capital cannot profitably engage in production. There is a checking of which, on the other side, is a checking of the demand for commodities and services. Finally comes something which acts as a shock to the credit and the fictitious values that have been created collapse. The machinery of production and exchange is thrown into confusion and panic ensues. During the period of hard times that follows, rent falls, production again moves forward, land booms begin and eventually the same condition of things is repeated."

Asked for an expression of views on the East Side riots, Mr. George refused to make any statement, saying that he had been away and was not fully informed as to what had transpired.

His Formidable Showing on the Cost of Becoinage Should the Silver Ratio Be Changed Causing Many to Waver and Emberrassing Members Who Have Speeches Already Prepared on the Silver Question - Announcement by Crisp of House Committees and Chairmanships-Gossip.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.-The debate opened in the House by Mr. Powers (Rep.) of Vermont, for repeal. The purchasing clause should be repealed unconditionally, he said, because it was vicious and danger ous in application.

Mr. Hooker (Dem.) of Mississippi spoke against repeal, believing that no relief would come to the country from it. The President said that the depression came from a lack of confidence. The lack of confidence was not in the great masses of the people, but in the great money institutions that were locking up the currency of the country. After the announcement of the Committee on Appointments, on motion of Mr. Bland Saturday next was set apart for general de-bate instead of five minute debates on the re-

Mr. Morrill (Rep.) asked and obtained indefinite leave of absence after to-day on account of ill health. He then addressed the Senste in favor of the bill reported from the Finance Committee last Friday to discontinue the purchase of silver bullion.

Mr. Morrill said he did not yet abandon all hope of bimetallism and that therefore he should gladly vote for the repeal of so much of the act of 1800 as required the purchase of silver. It had not originally received any favor from him and the wide distrust which if had excited should be speedily removed.
After its repeal the country would not be dependent upon gold alone for currency, as there would be much more of silver than of gold and more of paper currency than ever before, and as the silver dollar would not be demonetized, whenever more silver could be coined and utilized without crowding gold to a premium, it would be done by universal consent; the Treasury should be relieved from its embarrassment of furnishing gold to pay for silver bullion. To maintain silver, with the existing standard on a parity with gold, while increasing the public debt by the daily purchase of over five tons of silver buillon, the Treasury notes for the payment of which were practically redeemable in gold, was practically too heavy a task; the administration had acted wisely in appealing to Congress. As to the deciaration of the silver mine owners that they would not consent to the repeal of the act of 1890 without a satisfactory substitute, he said that the only not some some some some standard. The coin would then be legal tender, but would be by no means a measure of value. No map outside of an insane asylum would receive the silver coins of Mexico, India or Peru for more than their weight value in buillon.

After quoting a statement of the great diminution in the cost of producing silver of late years, 'Mr. Morrill said that, beyond doubt, that cheaper cost had had the natural effect of reducing the value of silver, and that if, by any means, the product was now to be considerably increased, an equal on greater reduction in value would follow. There has been, he said, from 1878 to 1883, some 420,000,000 silver dollars coined, with a difference between their face value and their present market value of $176,000,000—a depreciation of over 40 per cent. The stock of bullion and silver dollars now on hand, if placed in the hands of a receiver, would exhibit a melancholy loss. 'In edelusive efforts made by all the power and prestige of the National Government to enhance the value of silver showed that the universal law of supply and demand was still invincible, and could not be set aside even by the dynamics of legal tender laws. Every milestone along the dreary track of those unsuccessful experiments marked a step downward in the depreciation of silver. Foreign nations would not be persuaded to adopt any measure of relief in favor of silver by the fact that it might afford some relief to the United States; but they would do much for their own relief. America could be a competitor with the great powers of Europe for gold and by far one of the strongest competitors, as it was a producer of gold as well as of silver and would use both only for all the beatitudes of peace and for prosperous commerce. By the great cost of large armies and greater loss of labor in domestic industries European nations were really crippling their financial resources, while our small army and our peace-loving habits relieved our people from such excessive burdens, and would in the end of the anomaliance of the silver pr possibility of circumstances that could deprive this country of its large and natural share of the world's gcld, unless, by free coinage it went directly to the silver standard, or unless the stevenue laws were so framed as to make the imports exceed the exports permakently—and that was a risk which no political party would take. With a sound currency foreign gold capital would flow into our country by millions for investment, but with any cheap or uncertain standard of money, panics would be an every day occurrence and foreign capital would stand aloof and loreign creditors would demand a prompt return of all investments.

"I well undermand," "It. Morrilli continued, "that it will be necessary to enlist in any international agreement any number of of nations that will each take their just proportion of the present enormous annual production of silver or it must necessarily be a failure. Nevertheless an international agreement is the best hope of a permanent resuscitation of silver and after proper national action here on our part, the chances of resuscitation are greatly multiplied. Other nations will have an equal if not greater responsibility. It may be called a bitter remedy to stop purchasing silver, but without it the case is hopeless. If in all the world we are now the only purchaser of silver, to cease from it might temporarily cheapen its price, but to onen our mints to its free colings would permanent chase of silver, to cease from it might temporarily cheapen its price, but to onen our mints to its free colings would permanent of the proper of the care of the security perfect of the highest service we can how render to silver.

"The crucial test is whether we are or are not to drop from the bimstallic standard of silver, maintained on a parity, to the dangerously crippled standard of silver only and thereby limit to an inferior currency the foremost business nation of the world. The grave responsibility rests upon a Democratic Administration now in full control of both branches of Congress, as well a

CARLISLE'S LETTER.

Much Discussion, Aug. 21.—Secretary Carlisle's letter to Senetor Voorbees, showing that it will cost the Government $112,806,621 to recome the silver money now in circulation at an increased ratio, is a hard nut for the advocates of free coinage to crack. Carlisle's letter is the leading topic perceptibly embarrassed by the influence it is having upon the conservative men who are supposed to favor free coinage. In giving out the statement at this time Secretary Carlisle has displayed commendable tact, for it may upset the calculations of many of those Congressmen who have had rampant free silver speakers on the free silver side of the controversy have been holding back their speaches for delivery this week, hoping thereby to influence some of the "doubtful statesman." The clean cut and apparently conclusive statement of Secretary Carlisle showing the impracticability of free coinage at an increased ratio has disconcerted the free silver men and some of them will have to revise the speaches which have been placed in their hands by the "free silver bureau" or decline to take part in the debate. The friends of repeal have been aware of the facts contained in the Secretary's statement, but they have purposely refrained from making any declarations on that line so that Senator Voorhees might sound the key note of the fight against the most formidable proposition urged against the unconditional repeal of the Sherman bill. Senator Vest has held several hurried consultations this morning with Senators Teller, Wolcott, Stewart and other irreconcilable free silver men and it is understood they propose to resort to dilatory tactics against the bank circulation bill, and thus stave off if possible the consideration of the later measure will meet the flibusters on their own territory and move to table every amendment offered. Under the Senate rules a motion to lie on the table is not debatable and, therefore, the friends of repeal hope by voting down every motion made, to place the free silver men before the country in the attitude of obstructionists.

An impression is growing about the Capitol that the present extraordinary session of Congress may come to an end about the middle of September. This appears to be based on confidence in the possibilities of a compromise being entered into within that period upon the financial question. Nearly all the important legislation accomplished in recent years has been the result of compromise and the outcome of conference committees. The persons who hold to the opinion that adjournment is possible next month say that Mr. Vest's proposition to 70 to 1 will be passed by the Senate and ultimately will become a part of the bill for unconditional repeal, which, it is expected, will be passed by the House. The likelihood of a veto by the President of such a measure has been discounted by the believers in the reported early adjournment. They argue that it would be impossible to raily a two-thirds vote in either House to pass it over his veto, and that nothing could be accomplished, so far as the financial situation is concerned, by Congress remaining in session after such a veto was received. The more experienced watchers of political events place no confidence in these early adjournment theories.

During the last session of Congress Mr. Frye, then Chairman of the Senate Committee on Gommerce, gave much of his time to the consideration of such measures as would improve the candition of American commerce on the high seas and add to the protection and comfort of both passengers and seamen. Many of the bills introduced with that end by view never reached the point of passage of the late hour in which they were brought before the House. This year he has, however, taken time by the forelock and introduced the bills with the intention of pushing them through the Senate as speedily as possible. One of his recent bills looks to the correction of an evil that has existed in the bearding of incoming steamers before they, have leen given over to the proper customs officers and will ten An impression is growing about the Capi-

The object sought to be obtained by these experiments is the prompt assistance to vessels in distress visible only from the light-ships and houses, and not from the shore.

The father of the greenback and one of its most consistent and unfaitering advocates, Hon. George O. Junes, has reached Washington from New York. With such a fog of financial talk being stirred up here Mr. Jones could not get it in his heart to remain elsewhere. He talks greenbacks with all his old-time fervor, and as the next thing, is for the cause of silver, heart and soul. Wherever he sat down yesterday in an uptown hotel he became the center of an interested group.

Gea. Black was also negotiating for speakers of national repute to attend the Pennsylvania State Convention of Democratic clubs to be held at Allentown, Sept. 26.

DISSATISFIED WITH COMMITTEES.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—There is the usua dissatisfaction with the committee appointments. It is generally conceded that the Speaker has taken the opportunity to shown his friendship for the administration. It will result in a dissolution in the friendship between Crisp and Gorman. The only request the Marylander presented was the Chairmanship of the Library Committee for Barnes Compton. The rupture between Gorman and Crisp will naturally result in the forming of new lines in Democratic national politics.

TO CURTAIL DEBATE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 21.—It has been decided by the leaders of the silver and antisilver forces in the House to ask the House to amend the terms of the order under which the pending debate is being conducted. Owing to the demand upon the Speaker for time to speak under the rule for general debate, it was suggested that the five minute debate, to which the last three days of the week had been assigned, should be curtailed one day, and that time be added to the period set aside for the general discussion. This will give the leading speakers an opportunity to speak at length at a time when the interest in the debate will be at the climax.

Rioting in Many Provincial Cities of Italy -Popular Resentment Against the French-Uprisings Only Quelled by the Free Use of Foldiers' Sabers-Returns From the Elections in France-Events in Europe.

ROME, Aug. 21.-The trouble growing out of ghting between French and Italian workngmen employed at the Salt Works at grave international complications. It is not in Rome alone that the popular indig at what the Italians consider a gross breach of international comity is finding vent in demonstrations that are evidently intended to coerce the Government into demanding an apology from France for the attack upon Italians and the payment of an indemnity to compensate the families of those Italians who were killed. Riots directed against Frenchmen have occurred in many of the provincial towns, and the situation is con-

The most serious outbreak of popular feel ing against the French occurred in this city late last night, when a hooting mob attempt-ed to burn the French Embassy. Some of the rioters carried cans of petroleum and did not hesitate to openly declare that it was their intention to use it to destroy the Em

The authorities, however, had anticipated that an attack might be attempted on th Embassy and a strong force of troops was de tailed to guard the building. The rioters, however, attempted to carry out their threats to burn the Embassy, notwithstanding the presence of the soldiers. They were ordered to disperse, but refused to do so, whereupon the sol liers charged upon them. The mob held their ground for a time, and diers fought stubbornly. It was not until several charges upon them were made that they were forced to retreat, fighting all of the time. Forty-five of the rioters were arrested. Many of the mob who were at the fore-front of the fighting were wounded by sabers that the soldiers used unsparingly.

The rioting in the provincial towns was only quelled by the use of troops, the police being powerless to handle the mob. Further developments are anxiously awaited.

least twenty Italians were killed and a large number wounded. The fighting occurred on the 17th inst. Considerable sait is produced in Aigues-Mortes, and the works employed many men, some of whom were Italians. These Italians were working for wages considerably lower than those demanded by and paid to the Frenchmen employed at the works. The latter feared that It would be replaced by Italians, and much bad feeling was engendered between the two nationalities.

Last Thursday some of the men, Frenchmen and Italians, become involved in a fight over the wages question, and in a very short time a general riot was precipitated by the action of the other sait workers, who hastened to the assistance of their respective countrymen. The crowd, numbering 500, carried every kind of weapons, from pick-axes to firearms. There were frightful hand to hand fights in the streets. Afterward 500 Italians barricaded themselves on a farm. They were besieged forthwith by the French and a regular battle followed. Whenever an Italian escaped he was hunted like a rat to his death.

The town of Aigues-Mortes has a population of some 4,000, and is connected with the sea by four canals some three and and a half miles distant. It is surrounded by sait ponds and marshes.

FRENCH ELECTIONS. The Returns From 510 Electoral Districts Have Been Received.

PARIS, Aug. 21., 1 p. m .- The result of yesterday's balloting for members of the Cham-ber of Deputies in 455 electoral districts is now known. The returns show the election of 267 Republicans of all kinds, 12 Conserva-teurs Rallies (the name given the Conservatives who have accepted the Republic) and 37

Royalists.

An absolute majority of the votes cast and at least one-quarter of the number on the voting register must be obtained to secure election. In 139 districts none of the candidates secured the requisite number of votes and consequently by elections will have been held in these districts. These elections will be held after an interval of seven days from the general election.

In the district Gers, that M. Paul de Casaganc has represented since 1876, and in which he stood for re-election yesterday, a reballot is necessary.

MARSHALL EQUALLY SURE THE WRIT OF PROHIBITION WILL NOT LIE.

Ball and Thompson State Mr. Baid's Case in a Brief Filed This rning-Counselor Marshall Holds That Relator Has a Remedy in a Writ

Messrs. Bell and Thompson and City Coun or Marshall, attorneys in the case for the noval of Building Commissioner Reid, filed removal of Building Commissioner Reid, filed their briefs to-day with Judge Fisher. Mr. Bell said this morning that the case is a very plain one, in his opinion, and he had no doubt but that Judge Fisher would grant the writ of prohibition prayed for next Fri-day. The hearing, which was set for 10 o'clock this morning before the Mayor, was laid over, pending the decision of Judge

The brief for the relator is as follows:

1. See, 7 of art. 14 of the State Constitution directs the Legislature to provide for the removal of eity officers from office for neglect of official day.

2. The Legislature, acting under said constitutional provision, adopted in 1877 sec. 7127 so 7130 in the present Revised Statutes, committing jurisdiction in such cases to the Circuit Court and providing for trial by jury.

W. B. THOMPSON,
For the relator.
City Counselor Marshall in his brief contends that the above section in the State constitution and the statutes passed in pursuance to it were not intended to apply to all cases of removal from office or to take away from the Mayor the power given him under the city charter. He construes the words "willful, corrupt or fraudulent neglect of duty in office" to mean an offense which would constitute a misdemeanor and be punishable by indictment. There is no such charge against Mr. Reid in this case.
He does not think it was ever contemplated by the framers of the constitution that every city and town official should be given a trial by jury before removal from office.
In the cases of contested election the statutes state explicitly that "all contested cases of election shall be tried in the Circuit Court."

It is not so emphatically expressed in the constitutional provision with regard to removals from office. He also raises the point that the Mayor having jurisdiction in this case the writ of prohibition does not lie—as the defendant has a proper remedy at law in a writ of certiorari.

Mayor Walbridge has selected a list of twelve Republicans who are to become street sprinkling inspectors on Sept. 1. The list is not given out for publication, though it may se sent to the City Register's office at any

LOBSTERS AND CRABS.

Peculiar Features About the Appetizing Specimens of Crustaceans.

The lobster is much more agile than the crab, and baving eaten whatever food he can find within a pot, clambers about the netting until he discovers one of the everopen apertures in the sides, and then he passes once more into freedom. When fishing for lobster it is therefore necessary for the men to examine their pots as frequently as possible. Crabs, being slower in their movements, do not so readily escape, and an extra gook haul is anticipated if the pots are unraised for a longer period than usual.

Lobsters are not only eviliy disposed toward crabs, but sad to say, they do not bear good will to one another. As soon as they are safely innded their formidable nippers are encircled with a piece of string to prevent them mangling their neighbors. They are most pugnacious creatures. If two happen to stee in a confined space they will at once "hake for" each other's eyes. In the words of an ancient. "They fight like men."

Perhaps it is because crabs are less active than lobsters that the pot into which it is hoped the former will crawi must be moved to frash ground every time they are examined; otherwise few or none will be caught. On the other hand, the pots for lobsters may be dropped on the very spot from which they were raised without the subsequent catch being thereby lessened.

"BOIL SUGAR."

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—"Boll sugar." This was the message sent on the telephone wire to the night superintendent of the Havemyer Sugar Refinery in Williamsburg last night. It carried joy to 20,000 persons dependent on the 4,000 employes of the refinery. The storehouses of the refinery were filled to overflowing with refined sugar a week ago and no sugar was boiled after that night. Every day since then the stock undergoing refinement was disposed of and men were laid off in different departments. No one could tell when the work would be resumed and the families of the workmen were gloomy. As soon as the order to boil sugar was received at the refinery last night, a gang of men were set to work. One half the idle men return to work this morning and the rest tomorrow.

SONGS OF THE PROPLE

Much to Be Learned of a Nation Through Its Popular Music. From the Musical Herald.

In the folk-songs of the different nations of the world men of science will one day recognize a body of evidence of great value in the study of popular origins, racial relations, primitive modes of thought, ancient cus-toms, antique religions and many other bear toms, antique religions and many other things which make up the study of ethnoiogy. These folk songs are the echoes of the event people in them are crystallized habits, beliefs and feelings of unspeakable antiquity; yet not in the words of the songs alone. Study of folk song texts is only half study: indeed, it is study of the lesser half of the subject in respect of truthfulness. The words of the people's songs are a record of externals chiefly, and very often they are only half truths. If we would know the whole story which their creators put into them, consciously or unconsciously, we must hear also the music.

As the term implies, the folk-song is the product of a people, and a people do not lie. Music is an essential element of it, and music not only does not—it cannot—lie. The things which it could not be, are unconscious human products. We all act on a recognition of this fact when we judge of the sentiments of another, not so much by what he says to us, as by his manner of saying it. The feelings which sway us publish themselves in the pitch, dynamic intensity and timber of our voices. Try as we man, if we are powerfully moved we cannot conceal the fact if we open our mouths for utterance. Involuntarily the muscles of the vocal organs become tense or relax in obedience to the emotional stimulus and the drama which is playing on the hidden stage of our hearts is disclosed by the tones which we utter. I do not say in the words, mind, but in the tones. The former may be false, the tones are endowed with the elements aiready enumerated of pitch, intensity and imbre, and the modulation of these elements aiready enumerated of pitch, intensity and imbre, and the modulation of these elements aiready enumerated of pitch, intensity and imbre. been on friendly terms of late, although the latter lived with his father-in-law. Schneidlatter lived with his father-in-law. Schneider, who was a hard-working German, thought his son-in-law inclined to be lazy and frequently told him so. Last Friday Schneider asked Frank to do some work in the orchard and the latter refused, a quarrel followed and the old man secured a carving knife and started for his son-in-law. The young man ran to the house, secured a shotgun that had been loaded with swan shot for burglars and fruit thieves and fired the left barrel into the old man's right side.

To most any other person the wound would have proved fatal immediately. Schneider, however, was possessed of such a remarkable amount of vitality that he lived until yesterday morning. day morning.

Judge Morris Fines the Man and Dismisses the Woman. In the First District Police Court this morning Fred Levi and his wife were arraigned, the former on a charge of inter-fering with an officer and the latter on a charge of roping on the street. Judge Morris fined the man $5 and costs and dismissed the case against the woman. The arrest was made by Officers Krane and Delaney at the corner of Seventh and Chestnut streets Saturday night. Delaney claims that he has observed the woman several times going in and out of houses of ill-repute. On Saturday night he claims while he was dressed in plain clothes she approached him and asked him to accompany her to a room. He arrested her, when her husband came running up and upon attempting to argue the case with the officers was also placed under arrest.

The woman and her husband deny the story told by the officers. Levi claims that he left his wife on the sidewalk in front of the Wain-wright Building, while he went to get shaved. He had no sooner left her than De-laney came up and asked the woman to go to a room with him. She called her husband, when he placed them both under arrest.

MOROCCO'S SULTAN.

from the Century, "I am the Callph of the Lord; I am the captain and commander of the faithful, the chosen one of the prophet; I am the King of Kings; I am a Prince in Paradise; then obey me without murmur, as my camels do. This is the magnificent pretension of the ultan of Morocco, and it is generally alowed. It is refreshing to find a country where not only has the divine right never where not only has the divine right never been contested, but where as yet it has not even been questioned. Now and then a pre-tender to the throne has turned up, and the annais of Morocco are red with stories of civil wars. But the pretender has never been a revolutionist; he has always based his con-tention upon having a more divine right, and the alleged possession of a more gen-erous direct flow of the blood of the prophet in his veins.

The loyalty of the people towards the monarch partakes of the nature of adoration. When the battle is fought and won and the soldiers who have failen sorely wounded are brought off the field, and placed in a circle around the white pavilion in which the mysterious monarch lives, as mysterious and unapproachable and invisible in his camp as in his court, then, it is said, the dread Sultan walks up and down among them, smiling with silent pity upon their agony; and they, the poor ignorant Kabytes of the valleys and the nomad horseman from the desert cry out until their cries give place to the rattle of death, "Allah hark amer Seedna" ("God prolong the days of our Lord"), and this, too, is the cry of the malefactor as he goes toward death or mutilation, and these are the words of the disgraced vizar who, when for the purpose of political necessity he must disappear or be effaced, takes the cup of polsoned tea from the hands of his gracious sultan.

The mantic of the Prophet of Medina that he wears must, indeed, be broad and ample, for it is called upon to cover a multitude of sins; that is, viewed from our standpoint, but the Moors believe that, try as he may, the Sultan can do no wrong. He is like the saint I saw in Tangier, who spends his entire time in drinking gin and whisky. One might think that this saint was drinking an undue quantity of strong waters, but such is not the case; at least, it has never appeared to the Moors in this light, for he is such a holy man, they say, that the moment the strong waters come in contact with his person they lose all tuelr flery qualities and become innocent mare's milk.

licemen who only knew that Texas is no county in Ireland and refused to recognize his card.

To-day even a weak-lunged "L" road conductor rubs mud in the face of the old-time king of the highway by undramatically dumping the royal scion off the car for smoking cigarettes. Whither away has flitted the age of chivalry? Where is the "What, warder," who used to "ho!" and the "donjon" that used to "Keep" and the maid forever behind the latticed windows of the glamored action of the past? Where is "Six-Fingered Jack!" Whence have "Deadwood Dick," "Calamit Jane." "Sure-Shot Seth" and the "Rip-Roaring Baid-Headed Engle from Skypuncher's Peak" fleef? What is there left for the youth of our land to emulate? Whose pictures adorn the walls of this effect civilisation?

In true sooth, only the man who has been cured of catarrh, the baby raised on invalid's food and the hairiess citizen whose hands are unstained by a crime more inspiring than a 33 shoe. And is the boy of the twentieth century to pattern his deeds after these methods? Is the hero of the six shooter, the haloed saint of the broneho and lingling spurs, whose claim to a residence in Texas cannot be disputed, going to be placed on the rock-pile breaking his own pedestal for commercial purposes, while the merchant prince and before-taking hero thrust their faces into the newspapers and foreshadow the race that is to be? The outlook for chivalry is very, very gloomy.

""An' say, pard, just tell 'em I'm from Texas," were the words of a stranger in a Wyandotte County police court as he went below for thirty days. The stranger had thrown rocks in a street car because the conductor had put him off for smoking a self-made cigarette, even after the explanation that he was from Texas.

The incident is like a breath from an old romance. The day was when the man from Texas, with a swagger and a "gun," held civilization in an iron vise and got his beer without paying his barkseper. But that day is done; the gentleman on a broncho who used to ride up and down the streets and into the millinery store to trighten the women with the terrifying disclosure that he was from Texas has been pulled from his high estate. He has been rudely clubbed by policemen who only knew that Texas is no county in Ireland and refused to recognize his card.

accident is attributed to the careless. ss of the men. They were nailing sheets of corrugated iron to the sides of the build-ing and were provided with a scaffold ructed like the upper part of a non bench, with a back about waist high from the floor. The swing was suspended from the roof with the back to the street. The corrigated plates were raised from the ground by means of a pulley and ropes attached to the back rail, and the scafshould have been kept from tilted by this extra weight being tilted by this extra weight by iron dogs by which the floor could be securely fastened to the building. The fastening of these dogs is the precaution which the men falled to take. One of the men who had been working on the roof above them, said that if they had done this the accident would have been averted. "It went to the edge of the roof" said he, "to ask a question about the work, and when I looked over at the men they were standing leaning against the back of the swing. It tilted out and their entire weight was thrown on the rail, which broke, and down they went. The scaffold had to be shifted so often that the workmen had ceased to fasten the dogs, because it was too much trouble and they could manage the scaffold pretty well without them. OLDEST ALMANAC.

The oldest almanac in New England is still published annually by David A. Daboil, a rural astronomer and farmer of the rocky country town of Groton, Conn., and is en-titled "Daboll's Almanac and Farmers" Friend."

titled "Daboil's Almanac and Farmers' Friend."

This exceedingly quaint calendar was begun in 1783, and has been published each year since. A recent investigation shows that it was established in that year by Lemuel Warren and printed by John Trumbull "at the printing-office near the Court house, Norwich."

For several years thereafter it appeared as Bickerstof's New England Almanack, though in 1793 its tille was changed to that of New England Almanack and Ladies' Diary.

The name of "John Weatherwise" appeared on its title page as being the author and compiler of it, and in 1803, besides its astronomical and weather news it had "an affecting account of the death of Miss Polly and Haonah Watts," and other reading, "curious, useful and entertaining."

The work did not come into the the hands of the Daboil family until 1808, when Nathan Daboil, author of Daboil's Arithmetic, which was the standard mathmatical text book in New England for half a century, bought it and continued to publish is until the time of his death.

After his death his sons continued to issue degree its antique and curious character. It still has its odd "wise saws" and Yankee predictions about the weather, as, for instance, "Expect a cold storm or snow or rain about this time." Then there are such remarks as "Dog days begin," Dog days end," "Moon runs high," "Moon r'ns low."

William Harvey of Plainfield hasuprobably the only complete file of theal manac from 1783 to 1825.

Another old almanac that is still running is the "Old Farmer's Almanac," which was established by Robert B. Thomas at Worcester in 1793 and is still published at that town.

To rejoice the souls of those (and they are many) who detest the plain skirt and wand waist with which we have been afflicted, I can announce authoritatively that the waists are now being made with short basques, and more than all, that paniers are being revived and are to be seen on most of the latest dresses. We are no longer threatened by the abomination of on most of the latest dresses. We are no longer threatened by the abomination of crinoline, but the fashions are certainly in a painfully transitory condition, so wise people are providing themselves only with the strictly necessary garments for the passing hour, foreseeing that the next few weeks may bring about a sweeping change, which will render the garments of to-day hopelessly old-fashioned. The dressmakers themselves are feeling the cause ahead, and there are very few models to be seen because, as they frankly explain, they prefer to make their dresses to order from fashion prints, and to wait until something definite is decided upon before they construct their pattern dresses. However, Paris is so entirely empty of strangers that it may be that discouragement and not prudence is at the bottom of that abstention.

Apropos of the tale an Edinburgh journal declares that any one visiting the smoke-room of the assemblies of the Scotch churches would be surprised to find how many ministers smoke. Dr. Norman McLeod, who is fond of his cigarette, has been heard to observe that if smoking were allowed in the assembly there would be much less talking and business would be greatly facilitated.

the Bis'ng Generation.

Any one who has had anything to do with boys or who pays any attention to the manners and customs of these aggressive but withal lovable and necessary animals, must have noticed from time to time the curious way in which one "feller" communicates with a chum across the street or a block or two away.

with a chum across the street or a block or two away.

Walk down the street with any boy whom you know well enough not to be a severe restraint upon and whose age is anything from 10 to 16, and he will startle you with a sudden burst of melody. And while you are still wondering what on earth induced him to behave like that the air is rent with the reply of the "chum" whom your companion's sharp eyes had espied before you were aware even that there was another boy in the neighborhood.

Sometimes these calls take a purely vocal form, or sometimes they are simply pecular whistles.

Very seldom are there words attached to whistles.
Very seldom are there words attached to them, for they are usually meant to attract the attention of some one.
Here is one of the latest of these musical

Boys' cries have their fashions and their seasons almost as marked as those of the comic opera. Not very long ago a sort of imitation of the Swiss yodel was very popular among all the newsboys, messenger boys and every other sort of boys.

Some very accomplished youths made quite an elaborate affair of this yodeling, but the majority contented themselves with the sim-pler form quoted. What are the qualities necessary to make a call popular?

What are the qualities necessary to make a call popular?

How do boys select the particular one that in a few months is heard all over the continent? Take, for example, the third illustration. Though this is almost forgotton now, only a few years ago it is no exaggeration to say that this was whistled or sung by thousands of boys.

Cart History Philadelphia

One of the first points that strike us in this is its carrying power; that is, it can be whistled or sung in a manner that will make it reach a very great distance—much farther than a song produced with exactly the samo amount of effort could possibly he heard. The last note of all these calls is long aiways, and is so arranged that it can be indefinitely prolonged at the will of the performer—if so formal a term may be used for such an unconventional individual as the small boy.

The tune and the keys selected are generally very simple. Common time, or four quarter notes in a bar, is the usual time of these and most other street cries and calls, three-four, or three-quarter notes in a bar, being the next most frequently employed.

The fourth illustration is in this more uncommon time, but it differs from the great majority of the others in being accompanied by words, a very rare feature in these calls.

Only a short time ago this invitation was shouted, whistled and yelled in every State of the republic. This was one of the most e aborate calls that ever became popular, for besides having words it had an answer, also. But the answer was unaccompanied by words, and there were two distinct forms of reply, the first consisting of the original call, but with the high note omitted. as in the

Just as popular, however, was the second form given in the sixth lliustration. Boys who had any musical taste, who prided themselves on being "good at" calls, nearly always preferred the latter form. It was a little more difficult and much more showy. This particular call was usually addressed to some youthful member of the fair sex. Of course, "chums" occasionally communicated with each other thus, but as a rule, it was reserved as a delicate compliment to young coquettes of from 10 to 15 years of age. If the fair charmer was bashful, as was frequently the case, the bold, not to say aggressive, wooer supplied the answer, too.

This call was usually given in levity and with the idea of teasing, rather than as an expression of tender feeling, such sentiment being rather treated with scorn than held sacred with that prosaic, matter-of-fact creature, the American boy.

The boy that cannot whoop like a Comanche indian might as well be a common, everyday millionaire, who, in the rush of money-making, has forgotton how truly to enjoy himself.

Some calls are whistled only, never sung. Of such a character is the one given in the seventh illustration.

was exhibited in the Western New York & Pennsylvania yards here.

A Western New York & Pennsylvania freight train came down from Olean Tuesday with a load of empty cars, among them an Allegheny Valley Railroad car, No. 2,979. One of the car inspectors was passing the car when he noticed a sparrow fluttering about the drawhead. Its evident distress caused him to examine the car closely, and in the inside of the neck of the drawhead he found a small hole in the iron casing, and in this a bird's nest containing four eggs. The nest was so situated that the bird could only reach it when the drawhead was drawn to reach it when the drawhead was drawn to its entire length, and how the bird had managed to build its nest and lay its eggs under the conditions is still a mystery. If the car had been sidetracked at Olean long enough to allow the nest building, then the bird rust have followed the train, or been brought here with it from Olean.

'There was on board the ship a Scotch shiphulider—a man of great experience. The Englishman took this expert to a certain place where we could see the action of the stern and the play of the timbers. The services of a good dentist will insure the former against such imperfections as shall be posi-tively unsightly or taint the breath. The adagainst such imperfections as shall be positively unsightly or taint the breath. The advice of your dentist should be sought as to the proper tooth-powder to use, as many of the compounds on the market contain harmful acids and gritty substances. An exchange says there is no surer way to destroy the teeth than by the want of proper brushing or rinsing after eating fruit. In California, where fruit of all kinds is so cheaf for ten months in the year as to be wthin the reach of almost the very poorest, beautiful teeth are rarely found, while it is a very common thing to see even young women with false teeth. Excess in the use of fruit sometimes produces undue acidity of the stomach, which also reacts on the teeth.

Six ounces of rose water mixed with two drachms of chlorate of potash, is an excellent purifier of the breath. Rinse the mouth after each meal. For acidity of the stomach, which gives bad breath, use a solution of a teaspoonful of baking soda and half as much sait in a glass of water. Drink a little of this and rinse the mouth well.

A box of the very finest powdered charcoal, which can be obtained at a drug store, should be always at hand. Give the teeth an occasional brushing with it, or rub a little between the interstices of the teeth at night, brushing it out in the morning.

NEAR THE LIMIT.

Prof. J. E. Denton Says Express Trains Cannot Go Much Faster. The distinguished professor of expertmental mechanics at Stevens Institute, Prof. J. E. Denton, says that the ultimate limit of speed in railroad travel was within measurable distance. measurable distance.

Speed may be increased, but not very greatly. The reasons for this are various. A simple engineering rule demonstrates that about 120 to 150 pounds of force is necessary to move a car weighing, say thirty tons, and as the speed increases the resistance offered by the train increases at a certain ratio, naturally necessitating more and more force to overcome the resistance and maintain the speed.

Anny material difficulties contront us at every fresh attempt at increased speed. I doubt whether they can be overcome to any great extent.

Still growling, old Baldhead put a paper over his head, and thus outwitting the fly, dropped off to sleep.

It is unmistakably fly time. The almanac tells us so, and to the burcoile mind "it must be so if the almanac says so."

One knows it is a fact, for they can be seen swarming in pyramids near every garbage heap, in the markets, round the sweets or, posed to view in the confectioners', yes, can even be found "in my lady's chamber," which is very apt to disturb her slumber and arouse her, as would the lark, at peep of dawn (say about 5:20 a.m.), not with a sweet, melodious call, but with a persistent burs and by crawling over her face in such a teasing manner that sleep is effectually banlished for the time.

The question of where files come from is asked many times during the summer. It is always a mystery to the woman who has her house well-screened how even one of the little pests can get in.

The parents of a good many of them were probably housed the year before, when, in the autumn, vigilance was relaxed, and perhaps a door or window left unguarded.

With the instinct with which nature has provided them they crept into the warm house, into cracks not perceptible and there they hibernated. There, too, they lay their eggs, if to each fly, thus looking out for the propagation of the race; and so, when the first warm days come, they surprise us by buzzing away on the wisdows or around the table.

There could not be a more disgraceful exhibition of nocracy run to demogogism than the ctacle of a mob surrounding the Capitol and demanding special legislation except, perhaps, a lobby trying to secure it through corrupt means. If every interest feels called upon to rush to Washington to bulldoze or influence Congressmen into giving it particular favors or protecting it by legislation, free and just Government at Washington will soon become a howling farce. Congress should be as free as possible from all special influences. If members of Congress cannot or will not give the country wise and just legislation there is a way to reach them without mob or lobby. The ballot box is the safeguard of all good citizens. The cry of on to Washington embodies the height of folly and a menace to republican institutions.

ORGANIZE FOR RELIEF.

Passing by the wild howl intended to fire the popular heart to political revolution or worse, the proclamation issued by the Populist Convention at Sylvan Beach contains a kernel of wisdom in the appeal to the farmers for help for the unemployed and for the organization of relief committees to supply bread to those deprived of means of support by the depression of business

An appeal of this kind lies not only to the farmers, but to well-to-do people in every walk of life and especially the people of the cities. The clouds are lifting in the industrial and commercial world, but with the quickest possible recovery it will be some time before the effects of the scare can pass away and wonted activity in all branches of industry be resumed.

Meanwhile, thousands of men are out of employment and they and their families are dependent upon charity for support. The interviews published in yesterday's SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH with those in charge of charitable institutions and best posted with regard to the condition of the poor indicate a vast increase in the demand tion is through careful investigation by a for aid, which is likely to continue for several months.

An emergency exists. A condition has arisen which must be met. The majority of the way at once and precautions taken of those who are suffering for food are not responsible for their misfortunes. They are hopest and law-abiding and want to remain so. But their distress is the opportunity of the vicious elements and the unscrupulous and revolutionary agitators. Anarchistic orators are on the stump and the country is flooded with appeals to class hatreds and popular passions.

The tendency of the idle is to flock to the cities. New York's experience shows how easy it is to start disturbances in a host of distressed people. Other cities must expect similar situations. It is better to meet the emergency with courage, prudence and energy. It is better to keep the unfortunate in the way of honesty and peace by supplying their necessities than to let hunger drive them to riotous violence and make them the tools of demathan to be compelled to shoot them to protect the lives and property of others.

Work is better than charity, but until work can be provided charity must come to the rescue. Those who have should should be supplied with work when possible and food and shelter when necessary. THE WISE WAY.

Secretary Carlisle's letter to Senator Voorhees showing the cost of changing the ratio of silver from 16 to 20 will undoubtedly be used by the extreme silver advocates as an argument against making any change in the ratio. That is not, however, the real point suggested by the statement. Its proper effect is to show the folly of attempting any coinage legislation without careful and scientific investigation and ample deliberations with all the facts in

In all the discussion of the coinage question in both branches of Congress there has not been a single clear exposition of conditions and consequences. In support of his bill to coin silver at a ratio of 20 to 1 Senator Vest did not even endeavor to show from an analysis of the situation and the facts that his proposed ratio was a correct and just one. He had nothing to say of the cost of such a change and nothing to say of the probable consequences based upon reasonable deductions from definite information. No Congressman has presented a view of the question logically drawn from existing conditions in this country. The mass of oratory on the subject has consisted of political arguments and general appeals to class interests and popular prejudices.

Secretary Carlisle's letter suggests what ought to be done as a preliminary to wise coinage legislation. The overlooked facts which he brings into view in one branch of the question should be similarly brought out in all branches. Congress should not depend upon crudely reasoned conclusions deduced from materials supplied by foreign sources and past investigations. There should be no guesswork in a matter of such vast importance

The only way to avoid guesswork and to obtain a sound basis for intelligent legislacommission. The one fact known and admitted is that the Sherman law is s blunder. That blunder should be put out to avoid another. The solution of intelligence and patriotism can only be found in careful inquiry.

THE HUSBAND PROBLEM.

The country is greatly stirred over the recent debate of the young ladies of Harem on the subject, "The Man I Do Not Want to Marry." It may be doubted, however, that any striking results will follow this debate, serious as it may seem to those who have read reports of it. The most surprising incident of the meeting of these young women was the declaration of one of them that she did not want a handsome husband. Strange to say, the other girls applauded when this was plumped out. The public must naturally infer that hereafter the handsome man, whatever may be his triumphs elsewhere, will stand no chance in Harlem. Undoubtedly the news that the Harlem girls have declared against masculine beauty will start a thrill practice. of hopeful joy through many a plain, unattractive man who has hitherto been slighted for members of his sex with let things be as they are. more personal pulchritude.

The cautious plain man, however, will reflect a good deal before he puts much faith in such feminine platforms. The girls may talk in that way and may think themselves sincere; but when the masculine beauty appears on the scene, will not all be changed? There is his Appolinarian shape. How is that to be overcome? And his dark, soulful eyes, that are so fetching? And what if his whiskers alone be irresistible? See what Paderewski accomplished with a mere head of hair! Ah, no; the beautiful man will continue to conquer, however resolute a maiden here and there may appear. The Harlem girls know not Cupid. When they further say they want Christian, temperate, money-earning, good-tempered, mentally-bright husbands it all sounds very wise and prudent and is deserving of applause, but will they be so practical when wooers come a-wooing? There is really no reason why young women anywhere should get together to debate matrimonial problems. The girl who has intelligent parents may nearly always get excellent advice as to what kind of a man is best for a husband. Until she can be sure of getting the right sort of a mate she certainly does well to postpone her choice. It may even be better for her to have no companion at all than to make

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch Going home on the car on Saturday even ing I noticed in your People's Forum a communication signed by property holders on Bell Avenue, between Marcus and Walton, the street was being sprinkled. As an interested party, although not a signer of the letter, I had the curiosity to notice what effect the "kick" would have, in view of the fact that long and loud complaints to the city authorities have produced no results. A good many other residents in the neighborhood did the same and we were both amused and gratified to note that more water was used to lay the dust than during the entire preceding week, while portions of the street which had never before been sprinkled were made familiar with the sprinkling wagon to the discomfiture of the dust. It is very natural to rush to the People's Forum for aid on the occasion of a grievance, but it is not quite so common to acknowledge the benefits derived from that valuable department of the Post-Disparch, and hence I take the liberty of departing from the precedent and thanking both my neighbors for their enterprise and the Post-Disparch for its kindness and cooperation. The doctors expressed the hope that they would all be so much improved by the end of the week that they would be able to hold their own until the summer sun had lost of its flerceness, and the days and nights of autumn had made life more bearable in the crowded tenements of the city. Some of the sick children seemed to be at the point of death, heir wasted bodies and sickly faces indicat ing that without some steps to improve their condition of life little hope for their recovery could be entertained. Judge Morris Renders a Remarkable

A remarkable example of the manner is which so-called "justice" is sometimes dispensed in a police court was given by Justice Morris in the First District Police Court this morning. Sixth and Washington avenue, were arraigned on charge of disturbing the peace. A week ago last Saturday Koop insuited hir. Waiker's two sisters, who were viewing the illuminations on olive street. Koop attempted to address the ladies, and when they refused to listen to his advances, he caught hold of them, and, applying an obscene epithet, told them that he was an officer and that he placed them under arrest as immoral women.

The young girls attempted to break from his grasp and were roughly used and their clothing torn badly before he finally let them

Orying, the ladies hastened to the Barnum Hotel and informed their brother of the facts. Mr. Walker started out to look for Koop, and finding him at Ninth and Olive streets, promptly knocked him down. Both were placed under arrest.

The case against Mr. Walker was first called. Koop took the stand and said that Walker had knocked him down for insulting his sisters. He claimed to have been drunk at the time and not to remember what he had said to the ladies, but supposed that he had said to the ladies, but supposed that he had addressed them in an insulting manner.

"All right," said Judge Morris, "if that is all, I will fine Walker $\frac{1}{2}$ and suspend payment upon future good behaviour."

police headquarters this morning to the Four Courts.

Their victim, who was 29 years old and single, died at his home, 1835 North Thirteenth street, yesterday morning at 9 o'clock from a fractured skull. Several police met Geraghty about 11 o'clock Saturday night, near Ninth street and Cass avenue. He had a wound in his head near the left ear and told the officers that he had been in a fight at Eighth and O'Fallon streets with Mack, Canty and Dalton and that they had struck him with a brick. He refuses to go to the Dispensary, and walked to his home, where he died yesterday morning. The police arrested the trio mentioned by Geraghty yesterday, but they stated that they had not seen him at any time Saturday night. Christian Krapf, barber, 721 O'Fallon street, told the police that he saw Mack and Canty beat Geraghty and then run away. The three men were out in a buggy Saturday night and they abandoned the outfit yesterday morning about 2:30 o'clock at Eighth street and Cass avenue. The horse had been so cruelly beaten that he died shortly after he was taken to the stable of his owner, J. F. Geiger of Ninth and Wainnut streets.

This morning Mr. Mary Nicholson, accompanied by her husband, Marvin, a Chicago building contractor, called at the Four Courts and wanted the police to take George W. Jones, a bookmaker, into custory for disturbing her peace. Jones and a friend of his named Si Nixon, who are bookmakers under the name of Mercer & Co., white in Chicago, went to the boarding-house cinducted by Mrs. Nicholson at 123 Michigin avenue and gained her confidence. This was three weeks ago, Mrs. Nicholson claims that while there Nixon brought Annie Muiray, a notorious St. Louis wothan of Chestna: street, to her house and that she went out with the trio to the race track and the Werld's Fair several times. The Murray woman and Jones, it is claimed, induced Mrs. Nicholson to shake her husband and come to St. Louis, where he (Jones) would pur up the money to conduct a boarding-house. Last Thursday after sealing a lot of her traiture, she shipped a carload of it to Annie Murray's house under the name of Belle Lacoy. She arrived at Murray's house Thursday after stand that she was Nixon's wife. On Friday norming and found that the Murray woman was a disreputable character, althouth she was given to understand that she was Nixon's wife. On Friday norming Jones came in from Kansas City and the Nicholson woman met him. He said he wanted to talk to her and took her from Ninth and Pine streets to the Phoinix Hotel on Thirteenth and Pine, While hey were seated in the parlor of the hotel, Mrs. Nicholson's husband, who had traced his wife and furniture to St. Louis and had seen her enter the hotel, pounced into the room and siter hustling his wife outdoors, turned upon Jones. The latter made a quick retreat and dropped down-stairs, five at a time, with Nicholson on his heels. Jones finally escaped.

Nicholson then took his wife to a boarding-house on Pine, between Ninth and Tenth Nicholson on his heels. Jones finally escaped.

Nicholson then took his wife to a boarding-house on Pine, between Ninth and Tenth streets, but refused to remain in her company. The lady is out of funds and wants to go back to her former home in Saratoga County, N. Y. Her husband will probably send her there. She is 35 years old and has been married to Nicholson eleven years. She has no children. The furniture which she shipped to 8t. Louis is still in the store-room at the Union Depot. Jones, since the trouble at the hotel, has been amonying Mrs. Nicholson. He follows her on the street, she claims, and insists on her shaking her husband and going with him.

PROPLE'S PARTY OBATORA

Are Psychically Related.

STLVAN BRACH, N. T., Aug. II.—The People's party has indeed had a watery time of it. Between the elements and the Prohibitionists they have struggled to keep their heads above water. Sunday promised to see the encumpment crowded, but morning found a thunderstorm brewing and soon everything was soaky. In the afternoon the sun dried things out. About 5,000 people were there and a good proportion of them listened to the Populist orators.

The Rev. Dr. McGlynn has spoken twice and has on both occasions pieased his audiences. In the afternoon he spoke on the politics of the Lord's Prayer. He called it either a stump speech with religion injected in it or a sermon full of politics. The address on the subject has brought out a peculiar state of affairs. Mrs. Mary Lease is a fall-fiedged Theosophist, as are Judge Kerrand Mrs. Marion Todd, three of the principal speakers. It seems that Mrs. Lease had an address prepared on the same subject and she believes, as do her fellow Theosophists, that the two minds have been influenced by the same intelligence in the spirit world and that there is a psychic relation between herself and Dr. McGlynn. What Dr. McGlynn thinks of all this no one knows. He looks amused and smiles when asked about it. Nrs. Lease delivered her address on the politics of the Lord's Prayer in the morning and Dr. McGlynn spoke in the afternoon. In the leading ideas the two addresses were quite similar.

To-day Gov. Waite of Colorado will be here and will be the chief orator of the day. Most of the delegates are here yet and are discussing the prohibition clause in the platform, it is now claimed by the non-nationalists that the clause was adopted as a separate resolution and is not properly a part of the platform. On this ground the labor element of the party will refuse to recomize the national movement. The two elements are arrayed against each other bitterly and neglect no opportunity to call each other uncivinames.

It will be a grand finale to the series of successful pyrotechnic exhibitions presented during the last few weeks. The management, appreciating the public encouragement tendered the show by the large audiences that enjoyed both historic reproductions, has decided to make tomorrow night's performance a memorable event by the addition of several unique innovations to the specialty and pyrotechnic programme. All the attractive leatures of both the "Monitor and Merrimac" and "Fort Sumter" will be given on an unusually elaborate scale, and the portraits of several prominent citizens will be shown in freworks. The Busch Zouaves will put up a special drill and Mile. Remington and her chorus of coryphees will present a new series of Amazonian marches. Is brief enough without our shortening it by seeking medical aid, when we are somewhat unwell, from sources where it is only obtainable with great risk. Even if the old doctrine were true that violent diseases require violent reme-dies, is does not follow that drastic purgatives, narcotics, powerful "sedatives" of the nervous system are advisable in cases where slight dis-orders manifestly call for the use of milder means of recovering, involving no subsequent danger, but equally efficient. THOMPSON'S PLIGHT

in a Bank Which Failed.

BUT THE INSTITUTION WAS NOT A GOV-

He Must Make It Good-Failures and

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 21. proposition has been brought to the atten-tion of the Post-office and Treasury Depart-ments by Postmaster Thompson of Indian-apolis, Ind., involving a technicality in the laws of both departments, the disposition of which will be watched with considerable which will be watched with considerable interest.

When the Indianapolis National Bank failed and passed into the hands of a Receiver a few weeks ago, Postmaster Thompson had a deposit in that institution of about $3,500 belonging to his office, and the object of Mr. Thompson's visit to this city is to ascertain whether there is any process by which he, as a Federal officeholder, may be able to secure relief which, under the law, is not extended to ordinary depositors in suspended banks. in suspended banks.

The regulations of the Post-office Depart ment require postmasters to deposit their funds with United States depositories, if there be such an institution in the city in which the post-office is located. Under these regulations, therefore, Mr. Thompson, these regulations, therefore, Mr. Thompson, was deprived of the option of selecting his official bank of deposit and was required to intrust his official funds to a bank designated by the Treasury Department for the deposit of all moneys coming into the hands of Federal officers in Indianapolis. At the Post-office Department, Mr. Thompson was informed that the department had no means of covering such misfortunes, nor could the Comptroller of the Currency, Mr. Eckels, when the matter was laid before him, sug gest any remedial measures. Mr. Thompson, was, therefore, advised by officials of both departments that his only course for relief was in an appeal to Congress, and not much encouragement was given the unfortunate Postmaster in such a disposition of his appeal.

much encouragement was given the unfortunate Postmaster in such a disposition of his appeal.

A process, however, has been suggested by which Mr. Thompson may be protected, although the idea carries with it grave misapprehensions as to its ultimate success. Every bank designated as a United States depository is compelled by law to deposit with the Treasurer of the United States bonds to secure all Government deposits. Upon the failure of a United States depository and the commencement of the liquidation in the hands of a receiver, the Treasury Department advertises for sale the bonds deposited by that bank and they are disposed of under certain regulations to the highest bidder. From the proceeds of such sale the department deducts the amount of the Government deposits and remits the balance to the defunct bank. The Indianapolis bank having 4 per cent bonds on depost to secure its federal liabilities, the proceeds of the sale of bonds will in all probability be more than sufficient to cover the Government deposits. bonds will in all probability be more than sufficient to cover the Government deposits. It has been suggested that Postmaster Thompson's $3,500 can be deducted from the premium received by the Treasury Department when the bonds are sold. Whether, however, claims of this character are strictly valid ander the circumstances appears to be a question as yet unsettled. It is arrued that if the officers of the Indianapolis bank see fit to contest the authority of the Treasury Department in deducting Mr. Thompson's funds, the deduction will not be made, and Mr. Thompson's only chance for relief will be an appeal to Congress. As the matter stands to-day Postmaster Thompson's account is treated as is any individual account in the bank.

Henry Weeks, the New York embezzier, is living here. Weeks has made no attempt to conceal his identity since his arrival in this city. When asked if he desired to make a statement concerning the condition of his afiairs in New York, he said: "I have nothing whatever to say beyond that my plans are uncertain, and that my affairs are entirely in the hands of my personal assigned in New York."

Weeks knows that he has been indicted in New York, and is apprehensive that some means will be found to extradite him from this country. He has consulted the best legal talent in this city. Assurances have been given him that there is no possible way of taking him out of Costa Rica except by trickery, unless the United States Government should ask his surrender as a matter of courtesy. Weeks lives in good style at the Grand Hotel and seems to have plenty of money. His ill-gotten gains will procure for him the maximum of comfort, such as it is, but for a luxurious club man a costa kilcan hotel offers few charms. His crime of robbing women and embezzling trust funds makes him universally detested. The few English-speaking people here are not introduced, and as Weeks knows nothing of Spanish etiquette he makes no acquaintances.

While it is quite true that Weeks cannot be extradited, a request from the Government of the United States to that of Costa Rica might lead to his expulsion as a "pernicious foreigner." This move would result in his being sent out of the country by a Pacific Mail steamer from Puntas Arenas, Once on her an American detective could hold him until the vessel reached San Francisco.

SHOT A MELON THIEF.

LEXINGTON, Mo., Aug. 21 .- Charlie Curry, aged 15, was shot by Herman Roberts, aged 11, in the latter's watermelon patch yesterday evening. The owner of the melon patch has been annoyed very much of late by watermelon thieves, who have been plugging watermelon thieves, who have been plugging and bursting them open, and the little boy was put to watch the patch. This boy, with others, was seen in the patch and were in a clump of weeds when the little boy fired several shots from a target rifle to frighten them away. The Curry poy was shot in the right side near the lung. He said nothing about being shot until he had gone about a mile from the place to a coal shaft, when he became exhausted. The little fellow who did the shooting did not know anything about it for two hours afterward. The Curry boy was alive this mornine, but in a very critical condition and the chances are against his recovery. The Roberts boy was arrested, but released on bond.

RILLED HIS ASSAILANT.

PLATTE OTT, Mo., Aug. 21.—Saturday night about 12 o'clock Buck Fleshman and Davis Hatton got into a quarrel over some matter which is not made public. The first matter which is not made public. The first warning that Hatton knew of his danger was a severe knife cut on the shoulder which caused him to sink to the ground and almost faint. Fleshman followed him up and began cutting again, when Hatton pulled his revolver and fired two shots, one taking effect in front of Fleshman's left shoulder, ranging downward, from which he died within fifteen minutes. Mr. Hatton received five cuts on different parts of his person, which, although serious, it is thought will not prove fatal. Both parties were drinking to some extent.

SHORT OF MONEY.

ters Knocked Out by the Financial Stringency.

BANKS CAN NOT FURNISH THEM WITH ENOUGH CASH TO OPERATE.

culators Like M. F. Dwyer and "Pittsburg Phil" Have Cut Down Their Betting 90 Per Cent .- A Fatal Base Ball Accident-Cycling Chat-Sporting News of All Sorts.

New York, Aug. 21.-Bookmakers doing business at the Monmouth Park and Clifton tracks are having a lot of trouble in getting currency with which to carry on their busi-ness. Theirs is essentially a cash business, and even certified checks do not go at the race tracks. Bookmakers will only accept cash, and they have a lot of patrons who want cash in payment of bets they have

The closing of the Madison Square Bank was a blow to a number of these men, who had their accounts there, and that accounts for the non-appearance of some on the stands they have been in the habit of occupying. But the closing of that bank affected but few. The scarcity of currency affects every one them. It also affects the big betters in the ring, who do business on a cash basis. Some This was one of the application for change of venue. The plaintiff was ready to proceed to trial and it was the intention of his attorney John A. Hyds, to show collusion between Vette and Bogard in an effort to delay and hinder the latter's creditors. In the absence of any opposition, Hyde introduced papers and records to show that the mortgage from Bogard to the Chattel Loan Co., of which Vette is President, was made on July 18 on a not good a large part of the property. On the 20th of July Vette filed a claim eating forth that he was the sole and absolute the light of claiming the property by reason of the default of a mortgage to him personally. As the Chattel Loan Co. had also laid claim to the light of claiming the property for the sompany and at the same time swearing that lee was personally the sole and absolute where.

Judge Pollard gave judgment against the pay for cash would eat into the possible profits of his operations so very largely that he could not afford to pay them.

"Pittsburg Phil" is another heavy opera-tor who has had a lot of trouble in getting ready cash with which to carry on his betting campaign. He paid $240 premium on $10,000 that he got from his banker the other day. In several cases be has asked sums ranging from $10,000 upward and has been forced to accept a far less amount, even though willing to pay a premium for cash. There is hardly a bookmaker doing a heavy business at the track but has to pay large premiums, sometimes as high as 5 per cent, for the cash that he has been compelled to get to carry on his business. They are all complaining, and many of them insist upon it that they are being made the subjects while trying to get cash. Wall street speculators in ready mone have found some of their best customers among the men who play the races. They are a class with whom it is specially true that "easy come, easy go" applies. They think that they see some "good thing" in a race to be run and they need the cash to take race to be run and they need the cash to take advantage of it. So they have paid the premium willingly rather than have the chance to win money on the races escape them.

One well-known bookmaker, who would have been making a book at the Monmouth Park track last week, did not do so, as he could get from his bank but $2,000, instead of the $10,000 that he had asked for. He found that after paring for the privilege of his that after paying for the privilege of his stand he would have a cash capital of but a trifle over $1,000 to work on, and as that is too little he has been idle two weeks and says he will remain so until the financial stringency is passed. There is not money enough in bookmaking, especially as the horses are running at Monmouth, to warran a man going on unless he has a cash capital of $10,-000 at least to meet possible losses. To get that sum in the present state of the money market would cost more than the risk is

TRACK AND STABLE GOSSIP.

James Keene does not believe in running horses that his trainer knows are in no fit condition to do themselves credit or to do credit to the colors which they carry. His ositive order to William Lakeland, his credit to the colors which they carry. His positive order to William Lakeland, his trainer, has always been in substance as follows: "Never run a horse unless you think that he is fit at least to get a place. It is not fair to the public to run horses when they are out of condition. The race-going public is always tempted to back a popular horse when he comes to the post, and most of the race-going public have no means of knowing what the exact condition of the horse is. They have a right to infer that when a horse starts in a race his owner and trainer think that he is in fit condition and thoroughly trained to run well,"

There is one Futurity candidate that is fully expected to face the flag and Johnny McCaiferty thinks she will win. The filly is Fatality, sold by W. O'B. Burke to preside in the stand during the cluo's coming fall meeting, but on account of a contract calling for his services at Guttenburg this fall Burke was unable to accept the offer. KILLED AT THE BAT.

Ball Player Struck by a Pitched Ball and Instrutly Killed. CHICAGO, III., Aug. 21 .- While playing base ball yesterday afternoon Peter Hyland was struck on the back of the neck by a ball from the bands of the pitcher and was almost instantly Filled. His neck was broken and he died without uttering a word. Edward J. Carter, the pitcher who threw the ball, was arrested.

WATKINS WANTS BRAINT PLAYERS "I tell you a player must have brains to be of any value in a team to-day," said Manager Watkins the other day, "It used to be that if a man could go up to the plate and smash it, and go out into the field and, after smash.it, and go out into the field and, after a wrestling match, conquer the ball, he was all right. Things are different though now. Every point must be watched, and the use of good judgment at a second's notice will win many sames. Every man must be a captain. If he lets a single chance escape him he will ruin his club's possibility of success. The main point to-day is to get to first base. No matter how you make it, every player wants to aim at that one thing. Once at first, he has need of all the brains at his command to make the circuit."

ROBY HOOTLUMS.

Champion Dixon Not Anxious to Fight in

A New York paper has this to say of Dixon and the Solly Smith fight. It seems the champion, like Corbett, is rather anxious to giv George says that he is pleased beyond measure because he didn't sign to box Solly Smith at Roby. He read with interest the reports of the riot which occurred outside the Columbian Club on Monday night and ventured an opinion that if the roughs got to shooting at the exterior of the building it wouldn't take much to induce them to pop away at the fighters. Dixon does not believe that a sign reading: "Don't shoot at the boxers, they are doing the best they can," would have much effect on an infuriated mob, particularly in a spot where such a thing as police protection was never heard of.

CAUSED BY A COW.

Passengers of a Suburban Train Badly

Shaken Up. A car-load of passengers on the Suburbar Road had an adventure with a cow yester day afternoon which gave them a severe shaking up and likewise frightened some of Ramona Park with a score or so of passen-gers. At Plain Lawn the motor-man indulged in a nice swift coast with the power turned off. Just as they turned a short curve the cow hove in sight. She was right in the middle of the track with her tall toward the repidly approaching car. The cow was found dead after the wreck was righted. The coach left the track and tipped over sideways, breaking one of the telegraph poles against which it fell. No one was hurt, but all the passengers were mixed together in a rather unceremonious manner.
